

Add Right Hand Steering Wheel Controls

Did some more stuff today. I swapped out the steering controls to black and added right hand controls.

I ordered the "medium-black" option from this seller on AliExpress: https://a.aliexpress.com/_mqEOwtp. This one only has the call answer / hang up and the voice activation buttons which is all I wanted.

I couldn't find just these buttons on the same tan color as my interior so, black it is.

Medium-Black

Pretty easy just follow guide here: <https://www.tundras.com/posts/3344431>.

I tried them out right after install and my aftermarket radio picked up the extra right hand buttons just fine!

I'm sure some won't like the 2 tone on the wheel but I'm cool with it. I couldn't find the control set for my interior trim color for the life of me. These black ones were pretty abundant.

It's nice they light up in green (pic below) that matches the gauges too. Once day I'll change it all to white, but one step at a time...

They look super green in this pic but that's the night mode doing weird stuff on my phone camera. It's actually as bright as the gauges.

The plan also includes doing a wheel wrap in black and that will really set the wheel off nicely I think especially with these new black button sets. I do plan on blacking out the center emblem as well at some point. Then it'll just be the airbag cover that is the tan color. I think the 2 tone will be nice with that.
